DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. This application repeats a substantial portion of prior Application No. 09/710,975, filed November 10, 2000, and adds and claims additional disclosure not presented in the prior application. Claims 1-3 are supported in the prior application and will be given the priority date of that application. Claims 4-9 do not have support in the prior application and will be given the filing date of the instant application, November 3, 2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Dhar (US Patent 5,318,863).

Regarding claim 1, Dhar teaches a membrane electrode assembly comprising a cast ionomer having catalyst layers is used in the center layer of the electrode assembly (column 3 lines 1-13; column 5 lines 18-50; column 7 lines 1-16).

As for claims 2 and 3, these claims contain product by process limitations. Since Dhar teaches the product of these claims and the product by process limitations are not considered to have patentable weight, Dhar anticipates these claims.

Art Unit: 1745

As for claim 4, Dhar teaches that the gasket contains a central hole (column 9 lines 41-55). Since the sealing material is made of a rubber, it is considered by the examiner to be in a solid state; thus, any part of the seal including the perimeter is solid.

Regarding claim 5, Dhar teaches that the gasket can be made of a polyimide material (column 10 lines 43-63).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

6. Claims 6-9 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dhar in view of Morse et al. (US Patent 6,960,403).

The teachings of Dhar as discussed above are incorporated herein.

Dhar fails to teach the plurality of perforations and their sizes as well as the thickness of the sealing material as claimed in the instant application.

Morse et al. teach a bonded polyimide fuel cell. The polyimide layer contains a plurality of channels through it having diameters less than 10  $\mu\text{m}$  and a thickness of 25-50  $\mu\text{m}$ , stating that these dimensions are desirable (column 2 lines 51-65).

Generally, differences in ranges will not support the patentability of subject matter encompassed by the prior art unless there is evidence indicating such ranges is critical. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980). In re Aller 220 F.2d 454, 456, 105 USPQ 233, 235 (CCPA 1955). In re Hoeschele, 406 F.2d 1403, 160 USPQ 809 (CCPA 1969).

Regarding the diameter of the plurality of perforations of claims 6 and 7, it has been determined that, since the specification does not provide sufficient information to explain why the range claimed is significant, and since the diameter taught by Morse et al. is very close to that of the instant claim, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the dimensions taught by Morse et al. in the cell of Dhar.

Regarding the thickness of the sealing material in claims 8 and 9, it has been held that when the difference between a claimed invention and the prior art is the range or value of a particular variable, then a prima facie rejection is properly established when the difference in the range or value is minor. Titanium Metals Corp. of Am. v. Banner, 778 F.2d 775, 783, 227 USPQ 773, 779 (Fed. Cir. 1985).
